

Abstract

The present invention relates to a composition for filling a void in orthopedic joints or bone fracture sites. The composition comprises a polymer matrix and titanium particle less than 50 microns in diameter. The composition may be heated 5 to a fluid state, injected into the void, and allowed to cool to body temperature, returning to a flexible, non-dispersing state.

© 2009 Google Inc. All Rights Reserved. Use of this document is subject to Google's Terms of Service (http://www.google.com/terms/index.html) and Privacy Policy (http://www.google.com/privacy/index.html).